

100 Years of Engineering Insurances at Munich Re

In the year 2000 Munich Reinsurance Company commemorated the centennial of engineering insurances within their organization.

This special publication relates the history of engineering and engineering insurances since 1900 that has been closely tied to Munich Reinsurance Company. The onset of the 21st century provides an opportune occasion to look to the future: In view of the enormous successes of information and communications technology, in the energy supply, transit systems as well as medical and environmental technology, for example, it is to be expected that further new technological concepts will develop and the investments made to realise these. This also appears to be urgently necessary to meet the needs of a rapidly and persistently growing world population.

This publication describes the history of engineering insurance and the anticipated new business potential for insurers and reinsurers of engineering insurance business.

The following link will take you to this publication on the Munich Re Web Site

http://www.munichre.com/pages/04/publication_de.aspx?id=246